ANCONA, Italy, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Twenty-seven persons lost their lives and one hundred and fifty were injured in a terrific earthquake that damaged thirteen towns early today. The towns were located in the provinces of Ancona, Pesaro and Macerata, and according to shuddered bits of information property damage is heavy in all three provinces. Among the towns that suffered the greatest loss of life, the largest list of injuries and the heaviest property damage are Arezzo, Ravenna, Frazzari, Frano, Magera, Morozzo, Faenza and Borzaro.

Communication lines were restored to some of the quake-ridden towns late today. The quake area extends for many miles along the Adriatic coast. It is reported that the whole Italian peninsula felt the shock.

Government officials dispatched rescue troops into the area as rapidly as possible.

Weather Big Factor in Commercial Sea Flights

Florida Plans Greeting For 'Snowbird' Invasion

OCALA, Fla., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Florida knows winter is near by the influx of "chick-hikers and hoboes," and is doing everything possible to discourage the migration.

"There's no work to be passed around," Mayor J. J. Gerig of Ocala remarked in commenting on the situation, said to be more acute this year than ever before.

An "anti-hitch-hiking" conference recently was held at Tampa. It was proposed to set up an information bureau at the state border to warn against flocking into Florida, and a suggestion even was made that guards be maintained at the boundary.

Local Club To Hold Anniversary Party

Several Well Known Club Workers to Attend Sixth Birthday

The annual birthday party of the Hope B. & P. W. club will be held at the Hotel Barlow at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, with Mrs. W. G. McDonald of Little Rock, who served the club as its second president, hostess. Mrs. McDonald is state publicity chairman of the Arkansas federation and while she maintains her residence in Little Rock continues as an active member of the Hope club.

As usual, this will be guest night and a large attendance will be present. All women who have at one time been members of the Hope club are asked to again assume this role for the evening, and are invited to attend the meeting and bring any guest or guests they may choose.

Mrs. McDonald was in Hope yesterday completing plans for Tuesday evening and announced that Miss Lema Wilson, state president of the Arkansas federation of B. & P. W. clubs would be guest of honor and Miss Mary Burgess of Texarkana who organized the Hope club six years ago and has graciously assumed the role of "god-mother" since that time, will also be here.

Miss Wilson is one of the two hundred business and professional women who met in St. Louis in 1919 and organized the nucleus of the great group of sixty thousand women who maintain membership in eleven hundred clubs. This work has advanced steadily and a world federation was perfected in Geneva, Switzerland, this summer, with membership in twenty countries. Hope is indeed fortunate in having Miss Wilson to come and tell her interesting manner the story that has led so many women to successful attainments. Miss Wilson was elected president of the Arkansas federation at the convention in Fayetteville last April and under her guidance this year is proving one of the most successful in its history.

She was official hostess to the Southwest Regional conference which met in Fort Springs two weeks ago, at which time about three hundred of the most prominent business and professional women of the states represented in the district, were present.

Miss Burgess needs but little comment; her frequent visits to the Hope club have endeared her to all, and her visit is eagerly anticipated.

Judge Rules Flyers Not Common Laborers

ATLANTA, Oct. 30.—(UP)—An airplane pilot is a skilled artisan in the same class with a ship captain, and cannot be classed as a "common laborer," Municipal Judge Clarence Bell held in a case here recently.

J. E. Greer, a former pilot for an air company, filed a laborer's lien for services, attaching an airplane brought—but not paid for—from an air company.

The company that sold the airplane went dismission of the laborer's lien.

Policeman Shot By Three Gunmen Who Fled In Automobile

Officer Was to Have Been Witness in Case Against Noted Gunman

FOLLOW STREET CAR

Three Gunmen Said to Have Followed Street Car Many Blocks

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Three gunmen cruised past a Maywood street car in their automobile and fired a volley of bullets through a window, seriously wounding a policeman, who was to have been a witness in a murder trial of "Three Fingers" Jack White, gunman and public enemy.

The wounded officer, Sergeant James McBride, was wounded five years ago in a revolver battle with White and his gang. A companion officer and one member of the gang were killed at this time.

"Three Fingers" Jack was caught a few weeks later and sentenced to prison for life. The supreme court reversed the case and it was never tried again.

McBride had just returned to the city last night, supposedly from Wisconsin, where he had gone to obtain evidence of the trial today.

The automobile had followed the street car for several blocks down 19th Avenue, finally the driver drew alongside of the car and began firing after taking aim at the officer who sat near the window.

McBride who was wounded was taken to the hospital. Passengers on the street car were panic stricken as splintered glass and flying bits of wood were scattered over the car.

The car bore a Wisconsin license.

Armistice Plans a Kiwanis Meet

Committee Named to Draft Action By Local Civic Clubs

In order that Hope may suitably observe Armistice day Kiwanians made arrangements to work with other civic clubs in asking Hope business houses to close their places of business on Armistice day at eleven o'clock in the morning. Parks Fisher is to represent the Kiwanis club, with one member of the Rotary, Business & Professional Women's club and the American Legion post. Arrangements are to be made at once, in order that the shopping public may not be inconvenienced.

Delegates to the recent tri-state convention of Kiwanis club gave their report at Thursday noon's regular meeting of the club. At this convention Hope achieved creditable notice through the talks on vocational guidance made at the high school last Spring. And through the trade trips arranged at neighboring communities within the trade territory.

Tom J. Talbert, governor of the district which comprises Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri pointed out that this section was the richest agricultural region of the United States, and in a section that was destined to grow, and to become the center of population of the nation. Clubs throughout the district are assisting in a solution of the problems that vex at this time, he said. Loyal and unselfish service of its members will also bring growth to Kiwanis. "Never was there more work to be done in the Kiwanis field of endeavor, which includes underprivileged children, vocational guidance and placement, farm relationships and business standard and ethics," he said.

"Never before in history has the nation had greater need for leadership and courageous thinking," said Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Ill., and former governor of Kiwanis International. "And that is the type of leadership that Kiwanis must train, and is training," he continued.

Barge Furnishes Many With Winter Coal Supply

JAMESTOWN, R. I., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Many residents of this town secured a winter's supply of coal for the labor of transporting it when the barge Howard Sisters was wrecked on a rock recently.

Most of the craft's cargo of 702 tons of coal was washed onto Luck Strike Rock.

Isaac H. Clarke, to whom the coal was consigned, decided not to attempt to salvage it, saying he felt it wouldn't "look right."

Some 500 persons took away about 200 tons on the day after the grounding.

Ben Jones, Idabel, Okla., farmer, produced 138 bushels of U. S. No. 1 potatoes from one-half acre this year.

Dog Remains By His Dead Master

His Master Killed, Dog Remains With Him Until Sound of Hunters' Horn is Heard—Dog Then Leads Rescuers to Body

FT. SMITH, Oct. 30.—(P)—A faithful dog, which is given credit for the finding of the body of his dead master, is also thought to have caused his death.

The body of James A. Steele, 36, was found on a lonely mountain side, near Hartford, Arkansas, late last night.

A coroner's verdict has not been rendered. J. A. Burn, coroner, said that the death of Steele was surrounded by unusual circumstances. One theory, which the coroner seems to think is the most plausible, is that the dog leaped against the hunters' gun, causing the death of Steele.

From all evidence it is believed that the dog treed a squirrel and being unable to locate it Steele had set his gun down by the tree and climbed up to find the squirrel and that the dog discharged the gun.

The dog after the accident remained at the side of his master until late last night when he heard the sound of a horn. The dog then began a series of wails that brought the father and brother of the dead man to his body, at the foot of a large tree.

The gun had been discharged, only one shell having exploded. Blood stains in the tree proved the theory that Steele had been up in the tree.

Steele was a farmer and coal miner. He left his home at 1 o'clock to hunt squirrels, telling his wife he would return by 4 o'clock to go to work. When he did not return his father, D. F. Steele and his brother, Ira, were notified.

They found Steele's automobile by the side of the highway and when they began to blow their horn they heard the barks of the dog.

Hope Team Plays at Gurdon Today

Elevens Are Equally Matched, on Basis of Malvern Contests

Local football rosters followed the Hope High School Bobcats to Gurdon today where this city meets the Gurdon Go-Devils this afternoon in one of the hardest games of the season for the locals.

Gurdon has beaten the Prescott team, but lost to Malvern High School by three touchdowns—the same margin by which Hope lost to Malvern. Hope was beaten by Malvern 26 to 7, and Gurdon lost by 18 to 0.

This would give even odds in the game between Hope and Gurdon today, but it is believed that the locals have the greater offensive power.

They scored on Malvern, while Gurdon failed too. The Hope touchdown against the Leopards was the second to be registered against them this season, Fordyce beating them by only 6 to 0.

The Hope players left for Gurdon at noon, and several decorated cars carried the local rooting section to the Clark county city. The game is called at 3 o'clock in Gurdon.

California Fires Continue to Rage

Brush Fires Along Santa Clara River Said to Be Worst Since 1924

VENTURA, Cal., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Two brush fires continued to rage uncontrolled in Ventura county located in the Santa Clara River section, today. Two thousand men have been working desperately for several hours in an effort to check the flames, said to be the most disastrous since 1924.

William Brill, foreman for the Z. A. ranch, was trapped in the blaze Wednesday, and is in a hospital having been seriously burned. Five Philippians sent to move personal property from a ranch house are missing today. It is believed that they have been trapped by the fire.

Damage already is estimated to be in excess of $50,000.

16 Bodies Recovered From Oklahoma Mine

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Rescue workers had recovered 16 bodies from the depths of the Wheatley coal mine, tomb of 29 victims of a violent explosion Monday night which killed another worker on the surface. Today the workers expect to remove the last victims.

Eight bodies were brought to the surface this morning from the eighteenth east entry, farthest reach of the slope mine on the state penitentiary farm a short distance northwest of the city. Eight more were removed from the seventeenth east entry and the workers passed on to other levels where nine records indicated the other helpless workmen were on duty when the blast came.

Two Men Arrested In Connection With Yocum Abduction

Pair Are Found Hiding in Farm House By Party Vigilants

SEARCH CONTINUES

Search Is Being Continued For Third Member of Alleged Gang

KEWANEE, Ill., Oct. 30.—(P)—Two men are in the custody of police this afternoon and the vigilants are reported to be closing in on another.

Orville Whiskers is held in the county jail at Cambridge, accused of plotting the abduction plan of Earl L. Yocum, wealthy Galva banker.

Whiskers and Vern Algreen, his son-in-law a mechanic at Galva, were found hiding in a farm house not far from where three men were reported to have left an automobile when it crashed through a fence last night.

KEWANEE, Ill., Oct. 30.—(P)—Officers believe they are closing in on three men, who they are sure are kidnapers of Earl L. Yocum, wealthy Galva banker.

The trio eluded capture last night, fleeing from what officers think is the final settlement of the ransom for which Yocum had been held captive. Three highway policemen surprised the three strangers at a cross road, a mile west of here. A car believed to have been the same one used in taking Yocum away from his home Saturday night. They got into the car and hurriedly drove away. The highway officers in pursuit. One shot was fired by the patrolmen and they believed kidnapers returned the fire.

After chasing the car for some time the chase became so heated that the light car was turned from the road and crashed through a fence the occupants fleeing into the woods.

Additional help was summoned and a hunt continued for several hours. The trail however was lost. Police and volunteers from all near by towns arrived during the search. At daybreak an airplane took off from the Kewanee airport to search for the three men.

The country near where the boys escaped is a farming country that is covered in places by thick woods.

The abandoned car has Iowa title license. It was reported to have been seen passing through Princeton, Ill. yesterday afternoon by another car driven by Andrew Anderson, cashier of the Yocum bank.

A tip of undisclosed source to Sheriff Charles Nash, of Henry county, said that the final installment of ransom money, reported to be $50,000, was to have been paid last night. This settlement was not made, however, for the three men were surprised by the highway patrolmen before the money was handed over.

Banquet Plans Are Nearing Completion

Champion Watermelon Grower and Master Farmer to Attend

A program coming entirely from persons living in Hempstead county will feature the Agricultural Banquet which will be held at Hotel Barlow Friday evening honoring particularly those farm men, women, and 4-H club members who have won honors for themselves and for the county. Tickets are on sale in different parts of the county and in Hope; therefore those who have not secured tickets up to date are urged to do so at once.

Farm conditions in the county will be discussed by those best acquainted with it, and a general rally for business and agricultural conditions will be staged. Hempstead county has the honor of having one of the 10 Master Farmers in the state and the World's Champion watermelon grower. Either of these facts alone are worthy of our highest applause; consequently let us all plan to attend the banquet and do our part toward rallying conditions which are not nearly as bad as some would believe they are.

Lynn Smith, County Agent.

Fiser and Drake Cannot Play Ball

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 30.—(P)—Faculty members of four schools, comprising the athletic association of Arkansas colleges in a meeting today sustained the action of a week ago in the eligibility of Paul (Red) Fiser, Arkansas College star and Drake of Ouachita.

Fiser was barred on the ground that he signed a contract to play professional baseball with a Denver, Colorado club.

Drake was said to be a transfer student from the University of Arkansas.

New Orleans Mint Will Soon Be Federal Jail

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Plans for conversion of the old United States mint here into a federal jail have been perfected.

The mint, long abandoned, will house approximately 300 prisoners who have been sentenced to twelve months or less. This will relieve federal penitentiaries and other prisons of men and women sentenced for violation of the liquor laws.

Cackling Sea Turtles Found By Old Mariner

SARASOTA, Fla., Oct. 30.—(UP)—A species of enormous sea turtle that "cackles" when it lays its eggs has been discovered by Captain Clarence Roberts, veteran Sarasota pilot.

The "cackle," he said, sounds like a cross between the grunt of an alligator and the air-splitting cries of the manatee, or sea-cow.

These turtles, the captain reports, grow to enormous size, and are found on the sandy beaches of the Gulf of Mexico. They lay their eggs just above high water.

Captain Roberts has gathered turtle eggs for years.

American Countess Scores Countrywomen in Book

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Coutess Al-debert de Chambrun, nee Clara Long-wealth of Chicago, sister of Speaker of the House, Nick Longworth, is hard on her American sisters in her latest novel, "Ring on Two Fingers," which she has written and just published in French.

The American-French author has done nothing to glorify American womanhood in her book. In fact she paints the heroine as a beautiful doll, with sawdust where her brains and emotional glands should be.

The moral of the book, if there is one, is that American women are not moulded to be perfect wives, and the husband must take time off to change them to his own ideas.

Pan-European Federation Seen in Distant Future

KOBE, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Belgium sees little chance what the plan for a Pan-European Federation, advocated by French Foreign Minister Briand, will succeed in the near future. Emile Vandervelde, leader of the Belgian Socialist Party, told newspapermen here before leaving for Indo-China.

The Belgian people heartily approve the plan, Vandervelde said, but feel it will be difficult of realization because of the complicated state of European affairs. Britain, the Belgian statesman thought, may prove one of the chief stumbling blocks.

Nebraska Plans Service Stations For Hunters

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 30.—(UP)—"Hunter service stations" for the convenience of pheasant hunters, will be established at strategic points in or near the counties open to hunting during the season, Secretary Frank O'Connell of the state game commission has announced.

Hunters are required to obtain tags for all pheasants that are to be transported into a county that is closed to shooting. Often they are forced to travel long distances to a town where the tags may be secured. Partly to eliminate this annoyance, the "service stations" will be set up on main highways leading out of the open counties.

Germans Get Interesting Film of Wild Animals

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Material for an interesting UFA nature film has been brought back from an expedition to the Carpathian mountains led by Dr. U. K. T. Schulz.

Pictures were made of herons, ibis birds, hawks, falcons, pelicans and vultures. Films also were made of the Rumanian bear while drinking, breakfasting and when attacking a flock of sheep.

"Air-Guard" Network Planned By Germany

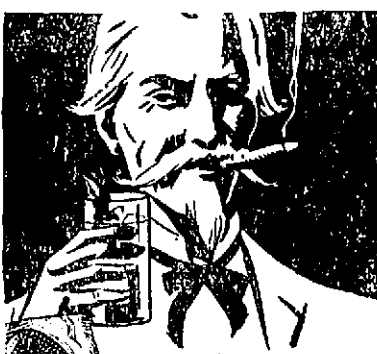

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—(UP)—A great network of "air-guards" to protect the population against aero-chemical attack will soon be established in Germany as the result of recent tests in East Prussia.

The tests were intended to show the effectiveness of the telephonic alarm in reporting enemy aircraft to military and civil authorities. As the treaty of Versailles forbids Germany to maintain military aircraft, ordinary commercial planes were used.

In the tests, military and civil officials co-operated in warding off the "enemy" planes. General Von Mittelberger, Inspector of the Reichwehr's arms schools supervised the operations.

GENVA, Oct. 30.—(UP)—African tribes may soon be able to give the cleverest American tips on how to prepare alcoholic brew.

This information reached the League of Nations permanent Mandates Commission that is charged with seeing that natives in mandated territories do not have access to spirituous beverages.

necessary property. Finally, the African tribes learned how to use the still and the introduction into Africa of private stock.

How to play Bridge AUCTION or CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 3

Once in a great while it is possible to find a hand that combines the good points both of bidding and of play. Many hands are examples of good bidding or of good play but seldom of both, so that the following hand can be regarded as unusual:

Example Hand

Hearts—J, 7, 6, 4
Clubs—A, K, 10, 9, 7
Diamonds—7, 3, 2
Spades—A

Hearts—A, 10, 2
Clubs—J, 6, 3
Diamonds—Q, 9, 6, 4
Spades—K, 8, 5

Hearts—9, 3
Clubs—Q, 5
Diamonds—A, K, J, 8, 5
Spades—J, 7, 4, 2

Hearts—K, Q, 8, 5
Clubs—8, 4, 2
Diamonds—10
Spades—Q, 10, 9, 6, 3

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed; A passed; Y bid one club; B bid one diamond; Z bid one spade; A bid two diamonds; and Y and B passed. Here is where Z had his opportunity and took advantage of it by bidding two hearts. He was "feeling for his partner's suit" and was rewarded by finding Y with strong support. All passed and A was confronted with the question as to his proper lead. The conventional lead would be the four of diamonds in answer to his partner's bid, but such a lead will lose the game for A. When your opponent has bid two suits, it usually is a wise move to open trumps.

The proper lead with A's hand is undoubtedly the ace of hearts, followed with the deuce. Z should win with the queen and lead a low club, finessing the nine in Y's hand. B is thus forced in the lead with the queen of clubs. This play by Z is a very clever one, for B has no more trumps and the only way he can save game is by underleading the ace king of diamonds.

If he does this, A can win the trick with the queen and lead a third round of trumps.

Played in this way A B can save game, but how many players would be able to figure this out? Also note the great difference the opening or defensive play makes in any one hand. Any other opening than the trumps or any other play than the underlead of the ace king of diamonds gives Y Z an easy game and rubber. Study this hand from all of these angles for it is an excellent example.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

Z, as dealer, should pass. A should pass and Y should bid one club. B should bid one diamond. Z one spade and A two diamonds. Y and B should pass, but Z should bid two hearts, just as he did in the auction bidding. A should pass and Y is justified in bidding four hearts. This will be made, of course, unless the defense is perfect, as already pointed out.

Here is an example of end play that comes up very frequently:

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y Z win all of the tricks against any defense?

This little end play is a simple example of the power of the discard. Z should lead the seven of clubs. A should discard the deuce and Y the jack of spades. But what can poor B discard? If he discards the jack of diamonds, Z's eight of diamonds and Y's ace of spades will win the next two tricks. If lead. How can Y Z win all of the tricks against any defense? This little end play is a simple example of the power of the discard. BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them right with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

REUNION HERE TODAY
CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

SHIELDS, young news- paper photographer, is in the city to introduce to other young people, Mrs. Parsons, a girl of Celia's age, whom she is considering for a mate to replace Mitchell's affection. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOM JORDAN, a handsome but of dubious character.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. LESTER DUNCAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan. Celia is a guest at Mrs. Jordan's apartment.

Celia, Lest and Mrs. Parsons are together one evening when they hear a radio report of a fire in the building where Shields is working. Celia insists on going to the scene and the others follow. Later Celia and Lest go to the photograph service headquarters. They are unable to get news of Shields.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

DOWN in the streets newshoys were shouting extras. The man who had spoken to Celia held a rumpled newspaper in his hand. It bore in huge black type the glaring banner "33 Perish in Flames."

"We're expecting to hear from Shields any minute," the man told Celia. "Waiting for the call now!"

"Then you don't know if he's hurt? Oh, isn't there some way to find out what's happened to him? Maybe he's—"

She could not finish the sentence, but turned away, hiding her face in her hands.

There were two other men in the office besides the one who had spoken. They had been leaning over the desk. At sight of the two girls they straightened and moved back respectfully.

"We've got four men down there," the man with the green eyeshade continued, "and one at the hospital. Half of the injured aren't identified yet. No use to worry, ma'am."

The telephone on the desk jangled shrilly. One of the other men reached for it.

"Apex Picture Service," he said curtly.

Instantly the room was soundless. All eyes were turned on the man at the telephone.

"Yes," he was saying slowly. "Yes, I get you. There was another pause and then, 'O. K. Ben.' He put down the instrument. "That was Strauger," he said. "He's sending some plates up. Says he hasn't seen anything of Shields."

The man who had spoken first pushed a chair forward.

"If you're friends of Barney Shields maybe you'd like to sit down and wait," he said. "Here —have some chairs."

The girls sat down. Lest murmured thanks. Celia forced the tears back, but her lips, tightly pressed together, were tremulous. She twisted and untwisted a corner of her coat.

"Let's see what the papers say," Lest suggested. There were newspapers—all with bold headlines—on a chair nearby. She arose and picked up the one on top.

"Thirty-five Lives in Fire," was the line across the front page of this one.

There was a list of names headed, "Dead in Fire Tragedy." The list was incomplete.

Celia traced through the names with an uneasy finger. Most of the men were foreign. Impossible for her to pronounce. Celia felt a tremendous wave of sympathy for the loved ones of those unknown men and women who must be suffering as she was.

THE telephone rang again, and the man with the green eyeshade reached for the receiver.

"What's that?" he demanded excitedly.

There was a noise at the door, but Celia did not hear it. She was watching the man at the desk. Then she saw the others start, and one of the men came forward. She swung around.

"Oh!" she cried. "Barney!"

Laughing and crying at once, she was on her feet and beside him. "Barney!" she repeated over and over again. "Oh, I'm so glad! I'm so glad!"

Barney Shields, hatless, clothes torn and soiled, stood in the open door. He grinned weakly.

"Hello, everybody!" he said. "Gosh, I had a time getting here!"

They all crowded about him. The man with the green eyeshade threw down the telephone receiver and hurried to join them.

"Good boy!" he exclaimed. "Some fire, wasn't it?"

Barney looked pale and worn. There were black marks on his face and hands, and the straggling locks of his dark hair were tossed. "Sit down, Shields," one of the men spoke up. "You're all in!"

"Am tired," Barney admitted. "Here, take this camera, will you, Jerry?" He handed the leather case to one of the younger men. "If they aren't spoiled I think there's some pretty good stuff there."

The young man dropped into the chair that had been shoved toward him.

"You mean you got pictures of the fire—from inside the building?" It was the man with the eyeshade who asked this.

Shields nodded affirmatively. "I shot as long as I could," he said. "Used all my plates. There was one of a little girl being rescued that ought to be a peach. Sndko may have blurred it."

The youth who had been addressed as Jerry was rushing toward a door with the camera.

"I'll have them out in a hurry!" he shouted over his shoulder.

Immediately there was a great deal of talk of pictures in technical language which neither Celia or Lest could understand. Shields was insistent and finally won his point, though the other two argued.

Celia hovered near Barney. She wished they would leave him alone. It was plain that he was exhausted.

Suddenly a door on the right opened and a slim, gray-haired man stepped into the room. He had an air of authority. As he came forward the others stopped speaking.

"Well, Shields," the man said, "you must have had a close call. Barney tried to smile.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Wagner," he said. "I hope so. Tried some good shots—that is, if they turn out all right."

WAGNER asked more questions. Suddenly he looked down at Barney's left arm. There was something unusual about the way the arm was hanging.

"Hurt yourself?" he asked shortly.

"Why—I guess there is something the matter. Turned my ankle when I jumped. Arm went down under me. It doesn't hurt much."

Wagner touched the limp arm and Barney winced.

"If it's broken!" said the older man. "I thought so. You've got to get to a doctor!"

"I'd like to see how these shots come out first," Barney began, but Wagner silenced him.

"Don't be a fool and take chances!" he said crisply. "Measure, can you take Shields to a doctor to have his arm set?"

There was no doubt that Wagner was the executive of Apex Picture Service. Things happened quickly when he spoke. It was arranged that Moore, another employee, was to take Barney to a physician's office.

"And go home and go to bed after the doctor gets through with you!" was Wagner's parting word as he turned to re-enter his private office.

There was no opportunity for Celia to talk to Barney privately. Now that she knew he was safe, nothing else seemed to matter. At any other time she would have been embarrassed before so many strangers.

While the young man called Moore was ringing for a taxi, Celia drew her chair close to Barney's.

"I had to find out about you," she whispered. "Oh, it's been such a terrible night."

"Shouldn't have worried."

"But I couldn't help it! Barney, does your arm hurt badly?"

He shook his head, but an instant later a twinge of pain crossed his face.

"Celia, don't you think we'd better go?" Lest Duncan asked. She had been standing in the background ever since Shields had entered the room.

"Yes," Celia agreed, "I suppose so." Then she leaned nearer and spoke in a voice so that Barney alone could hear. "Promise you'll call me in the morning. I've got something to tell you, Barney. It's important!"

"Sure, I'll call. Nice of you to come down here, only I'm sorry you were worried."

THEY said good night and the two girls left.

"Wonder what time it is?" Lest ventured when they had reached the ground floor. Celia admitted she had no idea.

"Well—I know I've missed my date with Dicky. No use to cry over that, though!"

They stepped out on the street. A little way to the left was the green coupe. They hurried toward it.

"Look!" Celia cried. "Evelyn's gone!"

The coupe was certainly empty. Lest yawned. "Well, I'm not surprised," she said. "Remember, she wasn't exactly in the best of humor. Probably sighted a taxi and beat it long ago."

They got into the car and set out for the apartment. Both of them were beginning to feel exhausted. For the first time Celia noticed their ruined dresses. She was apologetic.

"You did it all for me, Lest," she said. "I'll never be able to thank you. If you hadn't gone with me I don't know what I'd have done!"

Lest stole a quick glance at her companion. You're pretty crazy about that lad, aren't you?" she said.

More to herself than to the other girl, Celia answered, "Yes, I didn't know how much until tonight!"

Together they returned to Mrs. Parsons' apartment. The hands of the living room clock pointed to 20 minutes past 11 when they entered the room.

Celia tapped on the door of Evelyn's boudoir.

"It's Celia," she said. "Are you all right?"

"Oh, come in!" Evelyn called. "Did you find the young man?"

Celia told the story. Mrs. Parsons was reclining on a chaise longue. When the girl had finished she said: "You must have him call, dear. I'd love to meet him!"

At 10 o'clock next morning Barney Shields telephoned. He promised to come to the apartment that afternoon.

'Glad Hand' Parrot Gets Brass Bound Coffin

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 30. —(UP)—Evan, a ten-year-old parrot, was buried in a brass-bound wooden coffin after Walter DeWitt, owner, lost a year-long battle to cure it of pneumonia.

The parrot was the official welcomer of a theatre here and was placed in the lobby where it could shout, "Hello." After its illness was contracted the bird was placed in a white enamel "hospital" especially created for it back of the stage. The "hospital" was heated and lighted by electricity.

Protect PORCH FLOORS from winter decay

FLOOR and DECK ENAMEL

FLAT outdoor surfaces need double protection. Porch floors are exposed to constant moisture, snow and ice, not to mention tramping and stamping of feet. Floor and Deck Enamel is the toughest and longest-wearing outside floor paint we have ever handled. An hour of work will add years of life to your porch floors. It flows on smoothly and easily, covers a big surface and dries hard enough to walk on over night.

By Williams Sets Cross-Country Flight Record

A feminine flying invader from Britain, smiling Mrs. Keith Miller is pictured above as she emerged from the cabin of her little monoplane at Curtis Field, Long Island, at the end of a two-way record flight across the continent. She had traveled from Los Angeles to New York in 21 hours, 47 minutes, flying time and previously had made the westward hop between the two cities in 25 hours, 44 minutes. Both flights broke the records held by Laura Ingalls.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Cooperating with Governor Roosevelt's St. Lawrence River Bridge Commission the Canadian Department of Public Works will soon begin borings in the river at proposed sites at which elevation of rock has not been established by previous work. Canadian and New York State engineers have completed a joint inspection of all the possible bridge sites on the St. Lawrence, a number of which are located near Alexandria Bay and Morrisstown. The St. Lawrence River Bridge Commission will report to the state legislature, February 1, the most feasible location for the proposed international bridge.

Mississippi Runs On Gunless Platform

TYLERTOWN, Miss., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Now the gunless sheriff. J. M. Bilbo, brother of Mississippi's governor, has announced his candidacy for sheriff of Walthall county, Miss., on a gunless platform. Not, he explains, that he would throw a gun away, but he would not carry it when discharging the usual duties of his office. His idea of a sheriff, he says, is a "peacemaker." Bilbo says if elected he will leave his gun in his office or in his automobile, but that his experience of 25 years in operating sawmills and handling many men, both black and white, has convinced him that meditation and reasoning are mightier than the six-shooter. Russia is reported to be flooding America with toothpicks. Perhaps they might have used them themselves had they held on to their wheat. A Sudden Freeze—and Trouble

A SUDDEN drop in temperature—frozen radiator—car in the garage for repairs! That story will be told over and over again for the many thoughtless motorists who neglect to put their cars in proper condition for winter driving. Automobile authorities, the United States Weather Bureau and the United States Bureau of Standards have come to the assistance of the motorist in an effort to reduce the enormous damages done the automobiles of the country during winter freezes. Warnings are now being issued detailing the necessary steps toward preparing cars for freezing temperatures. The Weather Bureau announcing appropriate times when the first freezes may be expected, the Bureau of Standards giving the essential qualities of the perfect anti-freeze solution, and automobile experts giving specific directions as to the proper care of the automobile cooling system. It is pointed out that there must be a thorough cleansing of the cooling system and a tightening up of all parts before even the best of anti-freeze solutions will function properly and give adequate protection. As to the choice of an anti-freeze, the Bureau of Standards, after long research, advises that the solution should meet these nine tests: (1) must give complete protection, (2) should not boil away, (3) must do no damage to the cooling system, (4) should not heat up the motor, (5) should not affect the paint or varnish of the car, (6) should be non-corrosive, (7) must be non-inflammable, (8) should not be viscous at low temperatures nor decompose at high temperatures, (9) should not deteriorate.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30.—(UP)—A good hug is worth exactly $72, Judge Levi M. Hall of municipal court has ruled. Anna Mitlow sued Edward Hensley for $75. A good squeeze like that is worth $72," Judge Hall said. Youth of Vancouver, Wash., gained weight while competing in endurance wood splitting contests.

Quiz Aiello's Widow in Gang Shooting

While Chicago's underworld speculated on the possible consequences of the murder of Joe Aiello, North Side gang chieftain, the city authorities got busy in an investigation of the shooting. The upper picture shows Coroner Herman N. Bundesen at the inquest into the murder, with Mrs. Aiello answering his questions. Below is the most promising clue unearthed—an auto used by the murderers and abandoned and set afire not far from the scene.
